FOREWORD

Folks tell us our school days are the best days of our lives. Assembly speakers, teachers, even our parents and alumni friends remind us day after day that we will never forget high school experiences. Sometimes, when swamped with activities and homework, we are inclined to disagree heartily. Yet, as graduation draws nearer, we wonder if maybe there isn't some truth to what they're saying. Take, for instance, this year—our last at Red Lion High.

Spring . . . That Special Time When Minds

Love blossoms in the spring and a slight epidemic of engagements usually follows. Janice Deitz, Roberta Bailey and Shirley Becker proudly display their diamonds to admiring classmates Ruth Riale and Miriam Beck.

Rewards for the long-suffering . . . James Favino, Glenn Kinard and Ned Heindel qualify for Latin Honor Society and thus prove that top language students aren't always girls.

And there are always students whose minds wander every spring. Yvonne Shirey is no exception to this as she blissfully ignores the assignment on which the rest of the 11 A's are concentrating.

Turn from Study to More Frivolous Activities.

Even the teachers catch the fever at the annual picnic treat for the faculty. Mr. Frits, Mr. Yorks and Mr. Nitchkey get a chance to enjoy a childhood pastime.

Another group turns to the great outdoors . . . for the agriculturists, spring activities include horseshoe throwing for competition in the York County contest.

Always a big moment for the graduating class . . . this time the 1600 copies of the '53 Lion arrived on the very last day. What a rush for books and autographs!

The Days are Marked by Special Programs . . .

RIGHT: Path Klinefelter and Carolyn Ruby go over lines at an after-school rehearsal

Miss Bessie Reiver finds time to enjoy and arrange spring blossoms. With an A. B. and M. S. in mathematics, her daily duties include filling minds with the fundamentals of solid and trig.

The Easter season at R. L. H. S. means not only vacation time and new outfits but also the annual Easter assembly. Turning serious for the moment, a cast from both junior and senior high presented "A Light in the Window." This play, portraying the true Easter meaning, furnished an inspirational send-off for the first vacation of the new year.

RIGHT: Ned Heindel, portraying a man without sight, shares a scene with his landlady, Pat Foster, and a neighbor, Sandra Nace.

. . . Assemblies with an Extra Special Air . . .

Frequently that long trek to the auditorium downstairs is rewarded by the appearance of outstanding personalities. Two of these, enjoyed especially by the students, were Mrs. Elizabeth Conrad and Mr. Harry Kauffman. Mrs. Conrad's specialty is book reviews and for the student body she chose "Young Ike" and "Heaven Has Claws." Mr. Kauffman, appearing through the courtesy of the National Dairy Council, took the students around the world by arm chair travel (only those auditorium chairs are far from padded), weaving in his topic, "The Seven Basic Foods."

Everyone wonders what is in store, especially this group of seniors, who always have possession of the front seats.

... Time for Awards in Activities and Sports.

Coach Hangen hands out letters and certificates to his eagerly waiting baseball players . . . they were champs this year.

The envy of everyone . . . being nominated for the honor society and receiving those big beautiful school letters for special achievements. Hours of honest-to-goodness work in study and activities are in the records of the students who rate this recognition. So, when spring rolls around, special assemblies are arranged in their honor.

Seniors and juniors wear solemn faces for the annual installation into National Honor Society.

Guest List Includes Rural Eighth Graders . . .

Out-of-towners get an idea of high school life as Mr. Kulp and Mr. Moore give out preliminary information.

RIGHT CENTER: The mecca for the mechanical minded . . . guide Barry Barnhart introduces his charges to Mr. Yorks and the shop.

Came May 1, and with it the invasion by almost two hundred visitors from out-of-town, who explored the rooms and halls of the school with mischievous yet frightened expressions. From the time of arrival to departure they were left in the hands of the members of the National Honor Society. Orientation Day has been a custom for many years with the aim of providing rural students with a taste of high school life before they become official freshmen.

For the entertainment of the guests, the dramatic club provided a minstrel show complete with chorus, endmen and interlocutor, Terry Frey.

... Library Mothers as Guests at Club's Tea.

Heading the program as guest speaker was Mrs. Herman Ebert, the first librarian at R. L. H. S.

Handling little mischief-makers in the library all day . . . ordering new books . . . checking library fines . . . the librarian, Mrs. Hilda Shermeyer, B. S., is kept busy and welcomes this chance to relax.

Imagine! . . . tea time at R. L. H. S. But it actually happened and indeed has become an annual custom. With the library decorated to the hilt, the Library Club members as hostesses and their mothers as guests . . . what more could be desired, except a good program. That, too, was a part. Mrs. Shermeyer was able to induce a former teacher and friend of the school to handle the day's theme, "Books Influence Our Lives." Add to this Joyce Burg's baton twirling and the refreshments prepared by the home ec girls . . . in all, it was quite an afternoon affair.

It's refreshment time for the always hungry library helpers . . . and who wouldn't be hungry after trying to keep umpteen books in order?

Politics, too, Hit the High School Headlines.

A very exuberant candidate for president, Barry Barnhart, presents his platform to the students. Fred Grove, current chief, presides over the assembly.

Nominating committees, campaign speeches and platforms are all signs of an election, and this time Student Council officers were on the ballot. The different candidates for each job were officially named to the student body in an assembly, during which Mr. George Guyer, president of the Y. J. C. Student Council, outlined a council's responsibilities. Campaigning by the various aspirants began immediately after the assembly and great excitement marked the following week until the arrival of election day, May 19.

As council advisor, Mr. James H. Adams, B. S., M. S., is confronted with many problems brought up by student representatives. His specialty in the teaching line is geography.

The counting of a stack of votes is handled by seniors Fred Grove and Carol McGuigan and underclassman Woodrow Dellinger.

Trips are Scheduled for Fun and Competition

Freshmen and sophomores en route home from the Latin convention . . . after a day of fun and information, they're still full of pep.

For students out for two days of exciting experiences, last minute instructions . . . don't eat too much before you perform . . . keep calm . . . get plenty of rest.

Suitcases all packed, everybody ready, then all aboard for the bus trip to Pittsburgh.

Evening Events Feature Artistic Talents . . .

There may not be a Michelangelo or DaVinci in our small center of education, but the art students made a pretty good showing at the annual spring art exhibit. Halls, art room and cafe were filled with paintings, ceramics and leatherwork, observed and praised by an unusually large group of guests. Also catching the viewers' eyes were glass etchings and finger paintings. One treasure in oil was lost to the exhibit when it slipped behind an immovable cupboard, but who knows—years from now it may be recovered and claimed as a famous art piece.

This exhibit has the drawing power . . . students from neighboring schools admire leather works.

Visitors from tiny tots to fond parents look over the display, and apparently are quite pleased.

Mrs. Kathryn Barton, B. S., is head of the art department . . . instructs her regular classes and gives valuable advice to the many decorating committees.

... the Ultra-Ultra in Musical Enjoyment ...

In the spotlight . . . Miss Florence Spangler and the Junior High Glee Club.

Mrs. Dorothy Adams, B. S., is kept stepping with her full schedule of junior high music and English, but somehow she has found time to train Senior High Chorus, Girls Chorus and Vocalettes, all of which lent their talent to the program.

When ninety girls in frills and satin assemble for the opening number it can only be the Night of Music. A good program of bands, soloists, and choruses is always in store for the audience, and those attending on May 8-9 were not disappointed. The weekly practices of the musical organizations are conducted with this event in mind and the result is a bang-up performance.

Our maestro, Mr. Surplus, has the honor of directing the combined chorus and band number climaxing a grand night for singing.

... Smooth Co-ordination of Mind and Muscle.

With a grace and rhythm born of long practice, the girls do the Danish rhythmic.

Dotty Magill gives the ball a helping hand over the net during the mixed-teams volleyball game.

A sit-down race provides fun for spectators and participants.

Intramural and Interscholastic Sports Provide

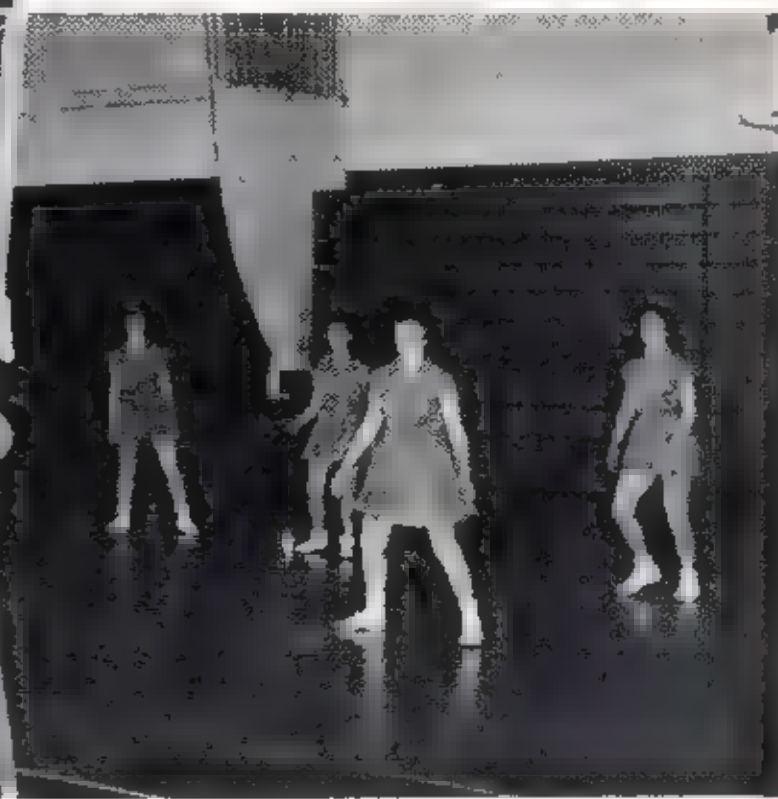

Tennis in the gym . . . Joan Holtzapple swings with a mighty right hand to send the ball back to her partner.

For any girl with an inclination for athletics the G.A.A. is the answer, both intramural and interscholastic lines. This organization is always buzzing with activity and the girls really keep the ball rolling! If anyone wants to see what they can do, there are always empty seats on the bleachers. Holtz's Hotshots, Dawn's Clowns, Paley's Palefaces and Smittie's Kitties weren't pros, but provided thrills any Tuesday or Thursday after school. The spring sports menu includes softball, tennis, badminton, volleyball, and kickball. In all of these our girls in blue give plenty of competition.

These gals competed for the first time with other county volleyball teams . . . D. Magill, E. Snyder, C. Ruby, J. Shenberger, D. Paley, P. Matthew, A. Smith, R. Hannigan, K. Downs, P. McKinley, R. Hannigan, J. Holtzapple, J. Shaul, and P. Cooper.

Leaping high, Joanne Shenberger clears the net in an always exciting volleyball game.

Plenty of Thrills at Noon and after School.

Running a schedule equally full, if not more so than the girls, are the fellows whose interests lean toward golf, tennis and the usual intramural games. As soon as the Country Club fairway turns a velvety green the lads are out swinging golf clubs. In their matches with York High, Dover and West York they claimed two wins and three defeats. As for tennis, usually an outdoor sport . . . because of the uncooperative weatherman the players resorted to the gym, where they ran competition (for floor space) with volleyball, basketball, shuffle board and the mild, brain wracking game of checkers.

Matching racquets with the York High team were these tennis enthusiasts—L. Ziegler, R. Flinchbaugh, J. Knudson, and R. Kenny.

The golfers—FRONT: T. Kohler, G. Ruby, L. Schmuck, D. Hildebrand, T. Frey, C. Zarfes, with Coach Charles Nitchkey.

Baseball Time . . . and Enthusiastic Fans Cheer

During the spring a young man's fancy is said to turn to baseball. This spring was no exception, for approximately fifty candidates reported for practice. After two weeks of training, Coach Hangen carefully sized up the prospects and selected his twenty-one men. The team started with a bang and steam-rolled over the other teams in the league. The outcome . . . ten wins, one defeat and the northern county crown. With a winning spirit and this honor tucked under their belts the boys invaded Spring Grove, southern county victors, and became sole county champions . . . a perfect ending to the season for a hard working gang of ball players.

Our little but mighty high jumper, Dario Shoff, clears the bar.

Speed in Various Contests with County Rivals.

Coach Harold Myers, B. S., M. Ed., fires the signal for the start of another speed test. Assisting with football is also on Mr. Myers' schedule, while academically his line is history.

Practice and more practice for the guys who represent their alma mater in field meets. These prima donnas (pet name of Coach Myers) make a quick exit from home rooms at 3:40 and in an amazingly short time are in their white suits heading for the field. Their energy paid off in a successful season in spite of a fourth place finish in the all-county competition.

Bill Becker sprints ahead to break the tape and chalk up a first for Red Lion.

Suspended in mid-air, Barrie Kohler makes the daring leap to success or failure in the broad jump contest.

Members of the Class of '53 Depart from their Four short happy years came to an end for the hundred and forty seniors of 1953 in June. From a bang-up class day assembly and the prom with its lovely rose garden setting to the more dignified Baccalaureate and Commencement, the last few weeks whizzed by. Giving the graduates last minute counsel before becoming alumni was Doctor Morley Mays, dean of Juniata College, with a well chosen theme, "Help Wanted." As they received their diplomas, then handed in the caps and gowns, another chapter in the history of Red Lion High had been completed.

Seniors anxiously wait in the basement of St. Paul's church for the Baccalaureate Service to begin . . . these hats seem to have the fellows slightly bewildered.

Prom couples dance dreamily to the music of Stan Selton in a beautiful garden of "Moonlight and Roses."

Sitting this one out are these twosomes . . . probably admiring the three thousand handmade roses adorning the gym.

Alma Mater Amid Usual Pomp and Ceremony.

Everyone loves the circus . . . and thanks to the class day committee it is circus day at R. L. H. S.

Clown Coeyman has his fortune told by Madame Helder while M. C. Gareth Smeltzer introduces the next act.

The long-awaited moment arrives at last . . . Mr. Holtzinger, president of the school board, is doing the honors of giving out diplomas at the Commencement held in the gym.

As a remembrance of the "best days of their lives," class roses are given to the graduates by junior flower girls, Barbara Schoomaker and Rachel Meyers.

Summer Interlude . . . Vacation Time for All as

A familiar sight this summer—loading Kinard's bus for a trip to the beach . . . this time, T. Seitz, E. Heckendorn, S. Barnhart, J. Koons, N. Knisley and T. Taylor.

One of those who found nearby Hershey the attraction . . . Carolyn Ruby seems to be enjoying the sun after a refreshing swim.

A full week of fun at Keystone Girls Camp was in store for Gloria Myers, shown with two of her new acquaintances. She was chosen to represent Red Lion's American Legion Auxiliary.

Classes are Forsaken for Fun and Travel . . .

Highlight of the summer for Ned Heindel, Bob Burg, Charles Zarfes and LeRoy Smeltzer was the National Boy Scout Jamboree held in California. This assembly is for an afternoon archery exhibition.

One of the many students to make a trip west is sophomore Ora Lee Craig. Looks as though she's pretty chummy with the deer.

A visit to the North Pole, N. Y., convinces Joanie Heindel that it's not as cold as it's said to be . . . here she feeds two of Santa's reindeer. These animals apparently were quite popular with the girls this summer.

. . . Unusual Jobs in the Sunny Outdoors . . .

Time for a rest . . . Bonnie Trout and Rachel Meyers with Lillian Hines, a transient co-worker. The girls spent their vacation grading loads and more loads of tomatoes.

Caddying at the Red Lion Country Club, provided Mike Laucks with plenty of exercise, some healthy cash and golfing "knowhow."

One of the many students who had 4-H projects during the summer . . . wonder if Barbara Schoomaker is dreaming of all the things she can buy with her profit.

Glorious months of sunshine and fun . . . need less to say, little time was lost in getting into the swing of summer activities. While some took to the beach, others spent weeks at camp or on sight-seeing trips. Mixing a little work with the frolicking, students secured jobs from soda jerking to tomato picking, or turned occasionally to school projects. On the hill, however, the sound of the hammer and smell of paint, or the low hum of voices in the office were a constant reminder that even vacations must end.

... Hobbies and Interests, Even Study ...

Mr. and Mrs. Adams headed for Penn State soon after school closed. Here they are catching up on some reading between classes.

Science to electricity . . . Mr. Daniel Myers helped out his son-in-law for the summer with a few trips to the bungalow for relaxation.

Selling frozen custard at Nantasket Beach, Massachusetts . . . Miss Espenshade considers this a profitable and pleasant way to spend a vacation.

Wow! Mrs. Bowers caught this Northern Pike all by herself while she and her husband were vacationing in Ontario, Canada.

... with Thoughts Turning Occasionally to Dawn Burg consults her schedule for the day. The Burg sisters held a baton twirling clinic in York for girls from nearby schools.

Cleve Mitzel, head custodian of the school buildings, checks doors and such to be sure that everything is in first-rate condition for the coming term.

Changing furniture in the cafeteria was a summer project for the janitors. Chris Keener and his broom pause to watch Charles Mitzel and Fenner Koons take care of a table.

School and Activities Coming with September.

Mid-August saw the football team polishing their running, blocking and passing. They also had a chance to build up their muscles by moving the bleachers closer to the field during the hot, hot heat wave!

Even though this looks like a party, it isn't! The make-up staff for the yearbook worked industriously to complete the dummy before the start of school. Seated around the table are Lee Strawbridge, Patsy Herbst, Lois May and Evonne Snyder.

A summer event for the band . . . getting fitted for their new uniforms. A representative of the George Evanson & Company, Inc., outfits Margo Stein, as other members of the band await their turn.

Fall . . . and the Officials Gird Themselves

Mr. Dan B. Kulp, B.S., M.A., checks important dates in the busy schedule. Chances to relax are very few for the supervising principal during the school day, and even his after-school hours have to be shared with the various community projects in which Mr. Kulp has active part.

Students, new and old, take their places in the auditorium for the opening day assembly. Although some try to conceal it, everyone is secretly happy to be back at school again.

LOWER LEFT: Back at Red Lion after a year's leave . . . Mrs. Arlene Gilbert takes over absentee lists and general finances, plus the routine tasks of any high school office. RIGHT: The secretaries—Miss Norma Herbst and Mrs. Jeannette Trout, both R.L.H.S. alumni—find that, summer or fall, there are always stacks of letters, lists and schedules.

for a Busy Year with Nine Hundred Students.

Mr. Edgar C. Moore, B.S., high school principal, has to be here, there and everywhere getting things rolling for the new term. Straightening out classes, helping new students and answering telephones . . . to Mr. Moore, they're all in a day's work.

Two newly elected members, Mr. Gerald Zarfos and Mr. Woodrow Mellinger, attend their first board meeting.

The RED LION BOARD OF EDUCATION — Mr. Charles Horn, Mr. Paul Raub, Dr. Woodrow Dellinger, Mr. Thomas Holtzinger, Mr. Penrose Heindel, Mr. David R. Fink and Mr. C. C. Rexroth. September brings just a continuation of their year-around responsibilities.

Rooms Assigned and Schedules Arranged . . .

There'll come a time when the smiles on the faces of these 10 B's will turn to frowns, for after all, textbooks mean real studying . . . "Butch" Orwig may wonder why he was so eager to get a Latin book.

New to the teaching staff is Miss Anita Winings, B.S., of the physical education department. Her pep and petite appearance, which frequently causes her to be mistaken for a student, are invaluable in her work with the Dancing Club

One of the first projects on Miss Myers' agenda for her freshman English classes is getting them acquainted with the library . . . and the 9 F's take their turn in applying their newly acquired knowledge to reference assignments.

The leaves begin to change color, birds begin to fly south, and students return to school. Summer is almost over, and the lazy days of doing nothing are over too. The teachers, refreshed from their vacations, have just oodles of new ideas for making classes more interesting. After a few days of getting situated in new home rooms and classes, greeting old and new friends, and adjusting to the school routine again, the real work begins.

... Books Handed Out, also Assignments ...

No time is lost by the home ec girls in getting down to the practical. Apparently there are problems, however, for Sylvia Kinard seems slightly puzzled by the pattern lay-out, while Dana Knisley scans the direction sheet for a clue.

Fortunately, typing classes are not restricted to commercial students; consequently, juniors and seniors of all curricula try hard to get this subject fitted into their schedule.

One of our faithful back-again faculty members . . . Mrs. Elesta Foust, A.B., works daily to impart some of that important mathematical knowledge to her junior high classes.

Even the world series comes in for its share of attention. The lucky students in gym or study halls get the scores first hand and pass them on to fellow friends in classes.

... New Faces among Faculty and Students as "Et tu, Brutus," would be the words of Sandy Mayes as she and her fellow 10 C's enact the fatal stabbing of Caesar in their English class . . . Mr. Miller must have decided to get this gory event over early in the year.

The sun is warm in early fall so the gym classes take to the outside . . . to the fellows playing this game of kickball the runner seems quite important . . . may be a winning run!

For students with an artistic bent, there are the advanced art sessions during the activity period. The male element seems to predominate this section of the class.

Frequently alumni return to their alma mater . . . Mr. Charles W. Tome, Jr., B.S., is now back at R.L.H.S. as teacher of history and English.

Things Settle Down for Another School Term.

Another early-in-the-fall event . . . sophomore he-men line up for the annual chest x-ray given to all the seniors and members of the football teams

Through the courtesy of Atlantic, junior and senior high students not only were spectators at this driving exhibition but also those qualified with license or permit took part in the two weeks safety campaign.

Miss Geraldine Smeltzer, R.N., gets the health program under way by arranging for student physicals. As school nurse her duties range from emergency attention at school to home checks on absent students.

Sometimes it is said that some seniors major in study halls . . . well, interesting and educational information can be found in the latest magazines.

Senior Class Starts Trend of Organization.

At long last, seniors . . . and the recognized leaders in school activities. Although this responsibility rests somewhat heavily on their shoulders at times, they really don't mind, for everything on a senior's agenda is a step nearer graduation. To them the highlight of their whole senior year comes in June.

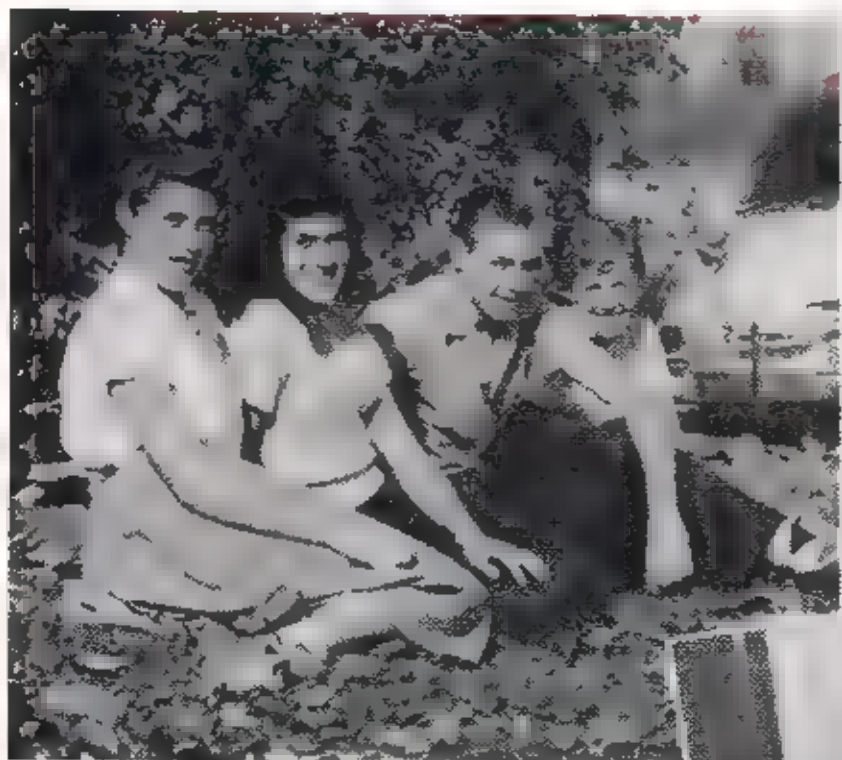

Since when do monkeys qualify as class officers? The agile characters on the rails are senior officers—Lee Strawbridge, vice president; Terry Frey, president; Joan Holzapple, secretary, and Joan Heindel, treasurer Graduation pictures are a must . . . so the picture committee composed of Barry Kinard, Terry Frey, William Uffelman, Janet Grove and Delores Collins, goes to work inspecting the different samples.

Class meetings for seniors are quite frequent at the beginning of the term, whether the purpose be election of officers, information about college or service enlistment. This time it's college and the setting is the library.

Juniors Follow Suit and Call a Meeting . . .

The one hundred and fifty-five members of the class of '55 organized for another big year, this time second only to the seniors. After being together for several years, everybody knows everybody else, and with zeal and zest typical of juniors they sail into plans for activities they will sponsor throughout the term.

Relaxing in the park are the junior class officers—Toby Danuth, treasurer; Shirley Artman, vice president; Glenn Kinard, president; Treva Smith, secretary.

Tragedy or comedy—which will it be? The answer lies with this junior play reading committee—Sharon Thompson, George McFatridge, Glenn Kinard, Dorothy Brandt, Rodney Smith, William Grim.

Retiring president, Richard Royston, takes charge of the first class meeting of the year, held in the cafeteria for the purpose of nominating officers.

... the Entire Flock Getting Down to Work.

A special compensation for taking French is the opportunity to sample Mr. Miller's home made French delicacies. From the looks of these 11 A's, Mr. Miller's a pretty good chef!

Time for the juniors to be measured for their rings . . . Mr. Wagner, representative from Bastian Company takes necessary figures for Fred Uffelman, while a very anxious Fred Warner waits his turn.

Sophomores Mark First Year in Senior High . . .

Little time is lost in getting the newcomers to senior high settled. Feeling quite grown up, sophomores roll up their sleeves as they undertake new subjects and extra-curricular activities. To prove the group is on the ball, preparations are begun immediately on their class assembly, party and their float for the annual pep rally (by the way, a winner).

These snow gals hold the reins for their class—Jeannine Overmiller, treasurer; Elaine Stump, president; Kay Horn, vice-president; Nedra Slenker, secretary. What happened to the fellows?

Getting better acquainted is the main theme at the sophomore get-together . . . plenty of informality and fun that evening.

The Junior Highers, Peppy Individuals . . .

Providing a fresh spark of enthusiasm and school spirit, these young people do wonders to the high school atmosphere. The seventh and eighth graders are for the most part town students, but a large majority of ninth graders come from country schools, and it does take a while for classmates to get acquainted. However, they quickly grasp the routine of high school life and adjust themselves to the new and exciting ways. Then, feeling quite grown up, the gang completes its organization and starts work on class activities.

There's a Feeling of Football in the Air . . .

Half-time gives hungry fans and band members a chance to make up for early lunch. From one who knows—that hike to the field makes hot dogs and chocolate milk as desirable as any feast.

Selling tickets at the gate is an every-home-game job for Mr. Richard A. Winn, B.A., who always has time for football. Five days a week he's busy with his commercial classes.

A usual 3:20 pep rally in the gym . . . cheering section practice for the next big game.

It's Mr. Sample's turn to comment on the prospects of tomorrow's contest, as he calls on the other members of the coaching staff for moral support—Mr. Hangen, Mr. Myers and Mr. McCandless.

Actively backing most school activities, the Student Council naturally lends a hand to the football program. Evidence of this is the pep rally complete with floats, band and trophies. Not all the council's energy, however, goes to the sports program for this organization also sponsors a dance and along with other projects, is in the midst of a campaign for long awaited school jackets.

Stopped by a Solanco player, Terry Frey tries fiercely to continue his bid for a touchdown.

Mr. Frederick Sample, B.A., Red Lion's newly acquired football coach and math teacher, flashes his now familiar smile as he prepares for an after-school practice session

Thirty-three husky hard-working fellows comprised our fast moving team, which ended up in third place in the Conference of Roses competition. All the games were simply colossal! For instance, at E-town the guys had to play on a field of mud in near freezing temperatures. At Columbia the team played their hearts out for Mr. Sample, an alumnus of Columbia. However, this game proved to be the turning point of the season for the Lions, as the fates seemed to go against them. Meanwhile the J. V.'s were having a bit of bad luck in their four scrimmage games but they were getting valuable practice for next year.

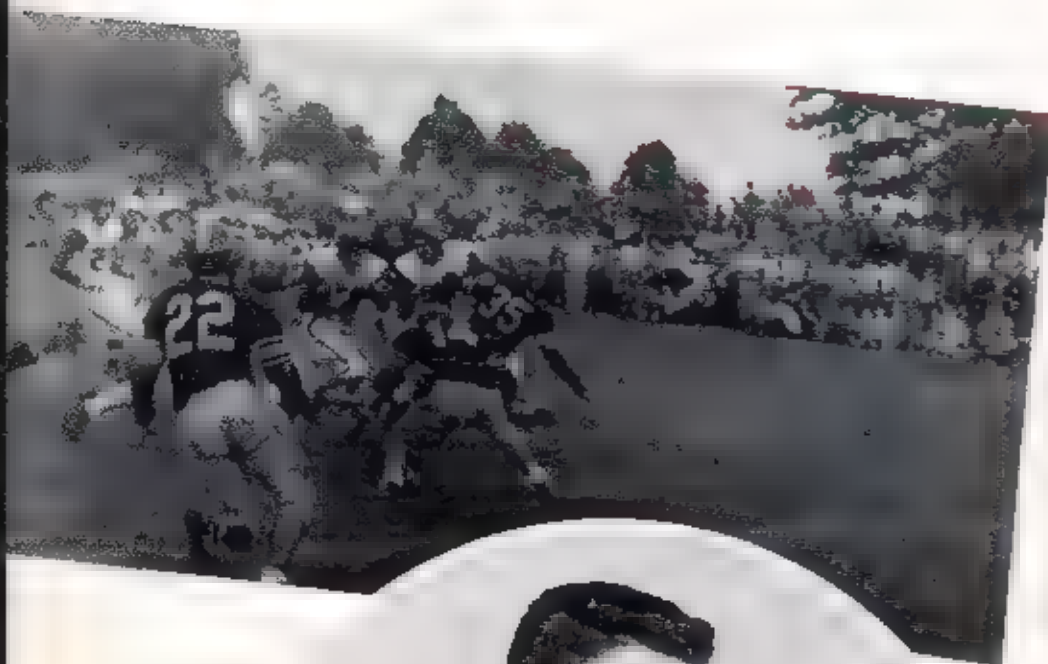

It's Stauffer back to throw one of his many completed passes against Manheim. Notice that superb blocking.

Time to return to the huddle and decide upon a play certain to make that extra point against Susquehanna Twp.

... Recognition from Town and School ...

These hefty football players take big bites to satisfy big appetites. The food served at the banquet proved too good to resist.

Even the cheerleaders and majorettes forgot their figures . . . happy to be a part of this occasion, after adding their share of pep and glamor to the season.

Even after the last game has been played, all is not finished with football for the fellows. Besides receiving letters and certificates in assembly, the guys also get a free meal at a banquet sponsored by the Junior Chamber of Commerce in their honor. With cheerleaders and majorettes as guests, and lots of good food to eat, the dinner is an event looked forward to each year.

. . . the Band Adding Zest to Each Game . . .

A familiar sight to every football fan is the COLOR GUARD, which leads the band on the field at every game . . . R. Young, B. Kinard, R. Leiphart, S. Leiphart, J. Toomey, C. Thoman, and T. Seitz.

Instrumental classes seem much easier and smoother when they're held outside. All this practice results in the peppy marches that sound so swell on those cool fall afternoons.

The band comes out of the night to go immediately into one of its intricate routines. Besides practicing the music, they must also drill daily on marching and formations.

... Tricky Formations and Catchy Music ...

A special sparkle is always added by the band, and this year, in the smart new uniforms donated by the alumni association, they made quite a picture. With their snappy marches and intricate routines they provided good and relaxing entertainment before, during and after the hectic excitement of the game. At the end of the football season, the marching group separates into concert band and junior band for practice and later public appearances. That they were honored at a Lion's Club banquet shows the popularity rating these musicians enjoy with the people of Red Lion.

UPPER LEFT: The band livens up a dull moment in the game by giving out with one of those jazzy marching songs. The cheerleaders get into the act by going through a routine of their own.

Mrs. Wanda Flinchbaugh, B.S., M.S., head of girls physical education and health . . . Cheerleading, G.A.A. and Dancing Club rate her leadership.

Football season ends in great style with the annual Football Dance, sponsored by the Girls Athletic Association. Prior to the dance, the girls in the association vote for the member of the team they think did the best job during the season. The crowning of the king by the president of G.A.A. is always the highlight of the dance, but this year, due to an unlucky accident in the game with West York, the King was unable to attend, and Coach Sample substituted for him. Dances, of course, aren't the only kind of fun the girls enjoy. Several times a week there is some friendly competition in one sport or another. All their activities provide entertainment not only for them but for anyone watching them in the gym.

Barrie Kohler, football king . . . because of a concussion he received in the closing game of the season Barrie couldn't even attend the dance.

On the Thursday night before Hallowe'en, many ghosts, goblins and witches were creeping into Red Lion High to the F.H.A. Hallowe'en party. If anyone would have seen these thirty-four girls then, they never would have guessed that they're really diligent home-makers-to-be. The girls meet every Thursday and under the counseling of Mrs. Grove and Mrs. Fissel, the home-ec teachers, they follow an active program covering fashion shows, teas, toy making for hospitalized children and floral arrangements for special occasions. Aside from this the girls aided G.A.A. members in selling refreshments at home basketball games.

Hallowe'en comes but once a year and these F.H.A. girls are having a bang up party with loads and loads of good eats.

November Means Action for Theatre Hands . . .

Getting the door fixed is no easy matter, but the boys have the situation well in hand, the way it looks.

Not all the action takes place in the front of the stage at a senior play. Ask any of Mr. Landis' crew and they'll tell you of an interesting and essential part of play producing—the scenery and properties. These handymen work steadily to construct scenery for assemblies, plays and dances . . . they're even called upon to assist guest performers.

Besides teaching general math and general science, Mr. John R. Beckley, B.A., lends a hand to help with properties for the senior play.

With the assistance of the stage crew, Mr. Dalton R. Landis, B.S., of the Industrial Arts Department, finds time to prepare the settings for plays and assemblies

... the Annual Senior Class Production ...

Mother adds the finishing touches to Willie's appearance before he goes to an important political appointment (so he says).

A major event, especially to the seniors, is the class play. On November 20 and 21 the stage became the living room of "The Family Upstairs," a light, happy-go-lucky comedy. Mother, anxious to see her daughter Louise married, tries to employ the services of her husband and son, who are unwilling to jump to her whims. Louise prefers to make her own choice, which she finally accomplishes after many trying scenes with her family. Annabelle, the younger sister, who despises practicing her piano lessons, and the talkative dressmaker from the ground-floor, add their humorous contributions to a successful play. The cast played to a capacity crowd two nights with the result—a well satisfied audience.

A typical teenager, Willie, diligently converses with a boy friend.

Mr. Richard Baldwin, A.B., M.Ed., teaches history and civics to the junior high, is co-sponsor of Dramatic Club and coach of senior play . . . when the occasion demands he puts on graphic demonstrations for the budding actors.

Mrs. Dorothy Bowers, B.S., M.A., takes charge of smearing the grease paint on the performers. This involves a slightly different technique than her usual typing classes.

By his unearthly howl Mother learns that Father has his finger caught in the table as she is adding an extra leaf.

Meanwhile, the Friday Assembly Programs Offer

Two student representatives from each class participate in the Pennsylvania Week quiz program assembly, directed by Mr. Fris, P. O. D. teacher . . . the quiz master, Mr. Baldwin; the judges, Mr. Hangen and Mr. Myers.

Seventh and eighth graders are featured in a clever musical skit with the setting in the Kentucky hills.

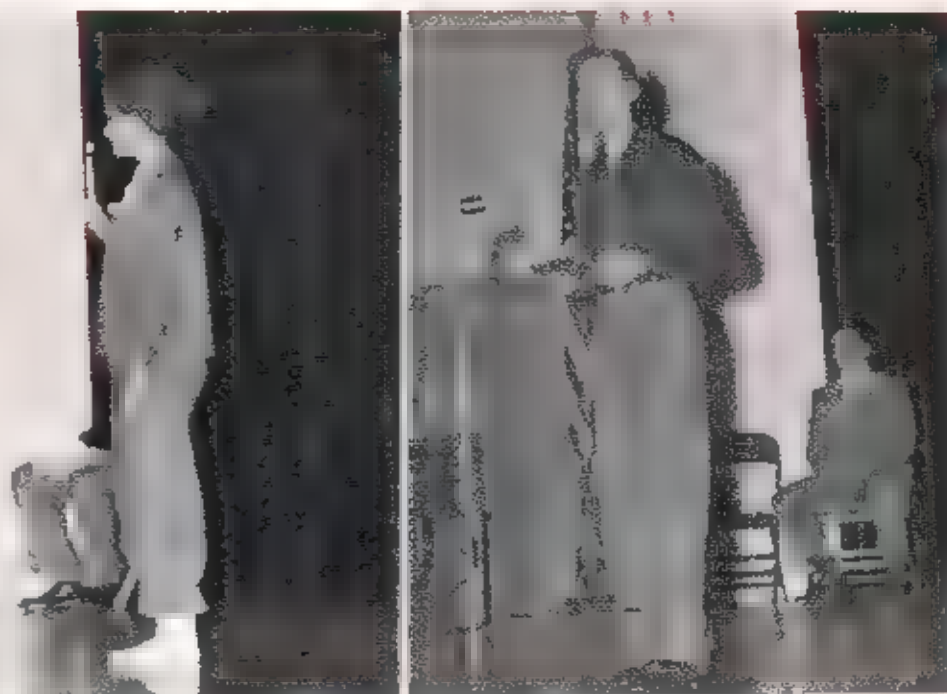

Every Friday morning, with the exception of those reserved for guidance programs, the entire student body and faculty gather to witness a variety schedule of assemblies ranging from impressive speakers to talented representatives from every high school class. With school under way, different projects require advertising . . . so far this fall the Hilltop staff, Lion staff and senior play cast have taken some assembly time to launch their sales drives. Throughout the season, special weeks and holidays receive their share of attention and organizations have opportunities to demonstrate their own particular skills and tricks.

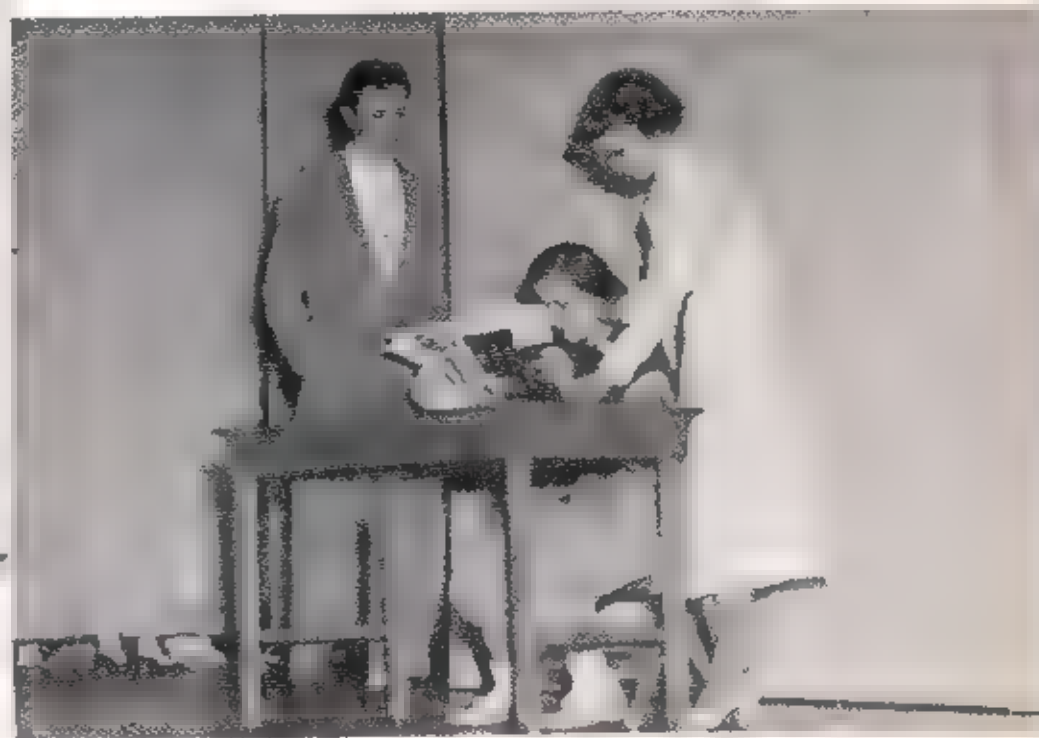

Since the juniors' assembly falls close to Thanksgiving Day, their contribution is in the form of a play. Complete with pilgrims, turkeys and Indians, it shows the true spirit of Thanksgiving.

a Wide Variety of Talent and Entertainment.

The supreme sacrifice apparently doesn't impress Evonne Snyder and Wayne Burg one bit as Nedra Grove gives up her man to the other girl.

No dramatic production is complete without stage lighting as demonstrated in this skit by Sylvia Pickel, Frances Keefer and William Grim

... the Early Rush of Groups to Decorate ...

The library is always the first to support the festive air of Christmas with its tree decorated by the seventeen members of the Library Club. It is these girls, who, throughout the year, keep the books in their proper place, sign slips and get change for the students who so often forget about that overdue book. Every so often, to arouse more interest in reading, these young librarians post gay and colorful book jackets in each home room, and think up the tricky and eye-catching bulletin boards for halls and rooms.

The judges have a tough time in narrowing competition down to one . . . G. Kinard, Mrs. Grove, and B. Smeltzer approve of Mrs. Foust's home room's decorations.

... Projects in the Spirit of Good Will ...

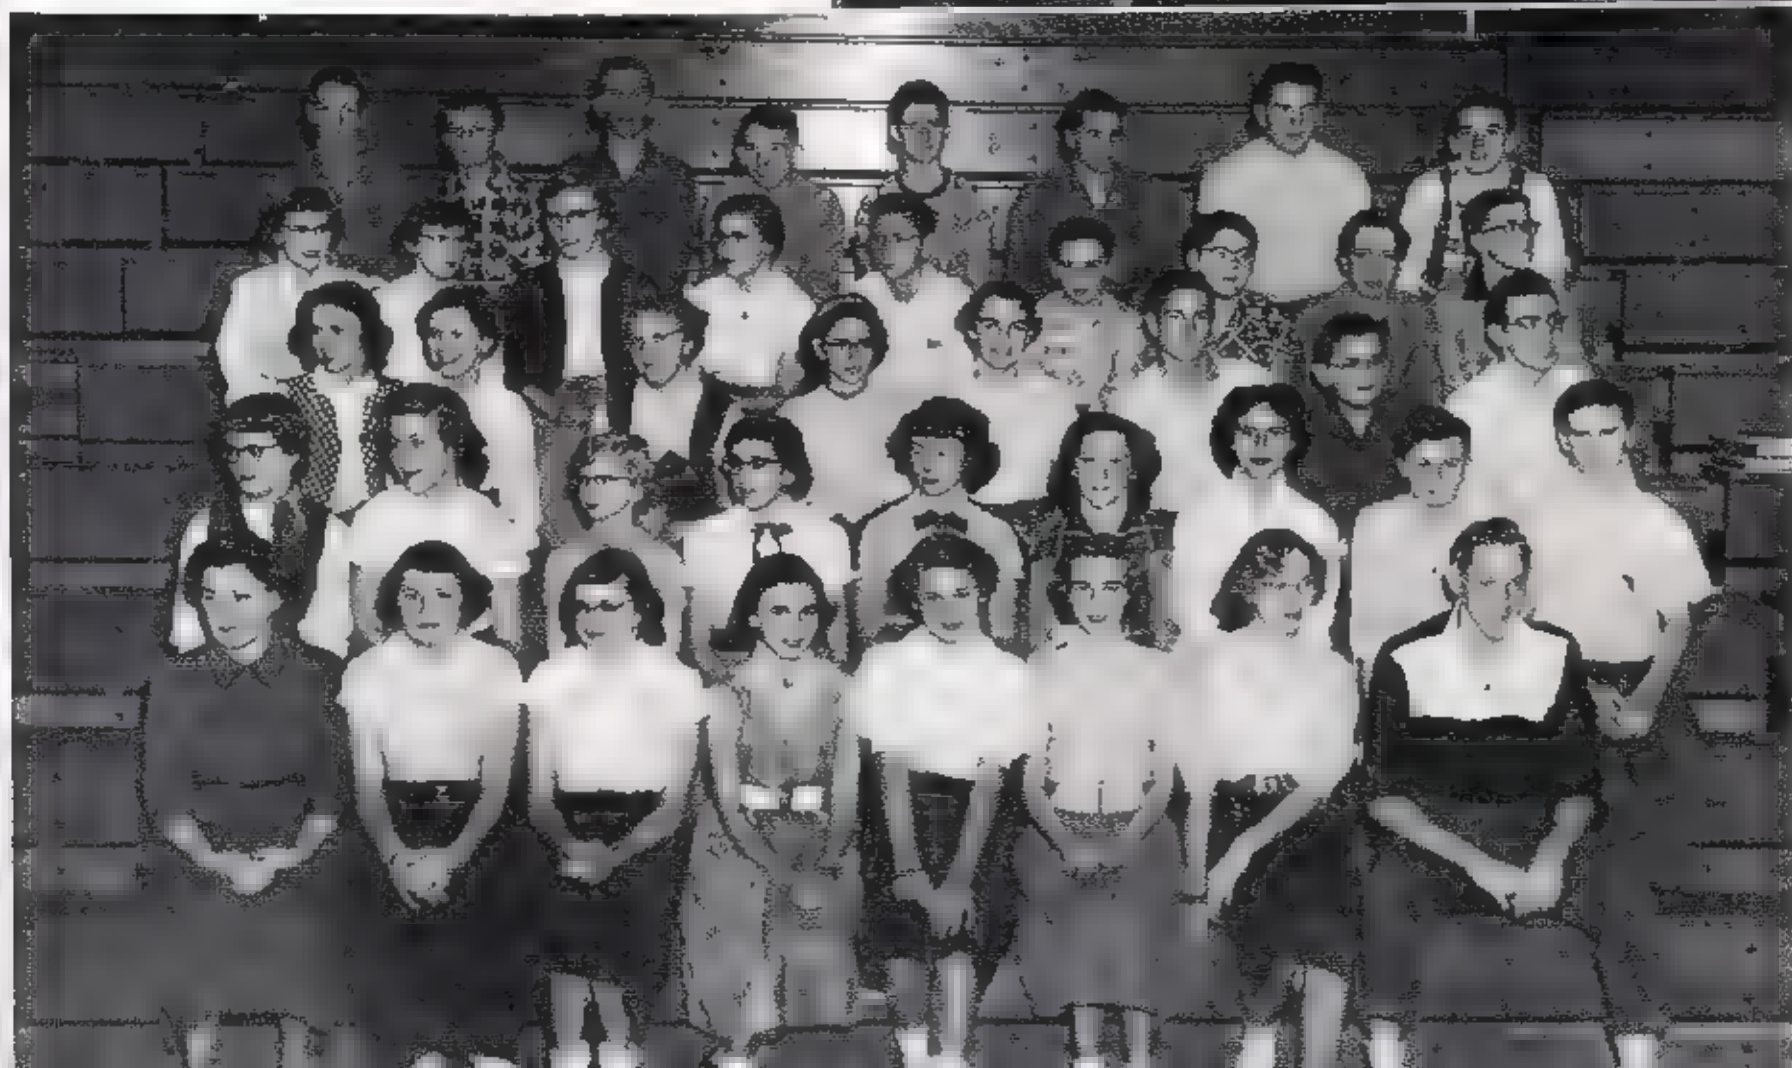

With the Christmas spirit in the air, the Red Cross Club prepared to make brighter holidays for the less fortunate all over the world. This time the project was favors for the children in hospitals. Early in the fall they conducted the financial drive which netted a sizeable sum and hundred per cent home rooms. Later they packed boxes for a school in Europe, one for each student. The kids really enjoy doing their bit to see that others are remembered not only at Christmas but throughout the year.

The sponsor of the Junior Red Cross, Miss Naomi Myers, B.S.—our ninth grade English teacher puts together boxes which will be sent to a school in Europe.

This year, on that cold Monday night before Christmas, they were rewarded by seeing clerks and shoppers pause in their holiday rush to enjoy the music. Actually, the members, selected through try-outs, have something to do all year. With the cafe as rehearsal grounds, they practice background music for plays, get numbers ready for assembly appearances, all the time preparing for the Night of Music.

Singing by the Senior High Choral Groups . . .

This pantomime on fiddling isn't out of order, for the girls are learning "The Orchestra Song" with the help of Mrs. Adams.

Sweet strains of music float out of the cafeteria where dozens of girls line the stage each Tuesday morning. This strictly feminine vocal group, also selected on the basis of try-outs, works hard on numbers for the big production . . . the Night of Music. However, a break is allowed in the middle of training, when they accompany the mixed chorus on a caroling spree.

The air in the gym was certainly in keeping with the theme of this senior sponsored dance as it was very chilly. However, with the dancing and the entertainment, everyone was soon warm as toast. Equally interesting was the Christmas assembly. The audience enjoyed immensely the amusing play and variety acts presented. As conclusion for the program, the annual awards for the best decorated home rooms were given to the presidents of 104 and 215.

That Popular Sport of Winter - Basketball . . .

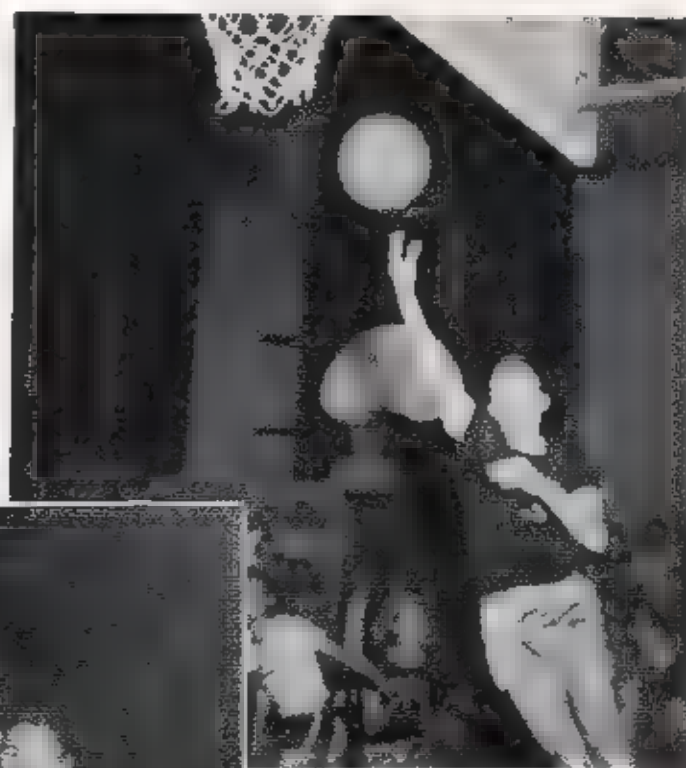

By early December our cagers moved into the gym and by mid-January the basketball program was in full swing. Entering into competition with other York County Scholastic League teams, the Lions started off on the right foot.

As the season progressed the competition grew stiffer and the fellows couldn't quite hold ground against the opposition; however, final standings found Red Lion in the third notch. Meanwhile, the fast-moving J. V. and Junior High squads kept going to the tune of winning a majority of the contests.

With a desk full of apparatus, Mr. Freeland Shaffer, B S., physics and chemistry teacher, gives his class a bit of free information on the splitting of atoms.

One of the most popular Thursday morning clubs for the seniors is the chemistry group with the fellows outnumbering the girls ten to one. These scientists call themselves the "Krazy Khem-ists" and with some of the things that happen while they are trying out new experiments, it is a most appropriate title. Amazingly enough one product from an experiment was paint (naturally with the help of Mr. Shaffer.) Any strange odors, messy sights and weird combinations in and around Room 203 are attributed to these sons of science.

English teacher, Mrs. Hilda Jackowick, B.A., is co-director for the Dramatic Club . . . her ingenuity always brings about a good peppy class day for the seniors.

Practice and more practice is the rule for the members of the Dramatic Club. With their two big assemblies and the small weekly shows they put on exclusively for themselves, they do plenty. Divided into ten small groups, each having a captain, they present plays, skits and musical numbers, utilizing to the utmost the abundance of talent offered. The big dream of these amateur thespians is to have an evening performance for out-of-school theater goers.

After all the noise and excitement of the band, people often overlook the Orchestra. But there actually is one. Although the organization is small and has few appearances, some students would rather play in it than trot all over the fields with the marching band. The group, which is made up from junior and senior high, meets every Thursday morning. At these get-togethers, they practice, for the most part, the music of the old masters.

Another of our traditional musical organizations is the Dance Band. Meeting on Thursday evenings in the gymnasium, they practice new pop tunes, as well as old favorites. Many new members were taken in this year, since most of the old stand-bys have graduated. It takes awhile to get the gang in the groove, and so the band has played at few school dances. However, led by Mr. Surplus, the group is aiming toward perfection for the coming term.

The members of the Tumbling Club finally got a chance to show off their skill and agility to an admiring student body. While the enthralled audience gaped, these boys demonstrated everything from the simplest of tumblings to the building of a super-large human pyramid. Their jumps, twists and flips were perfectly executed and their sense of balance is simply terrific. All tumblers know that practice makes perfect, and that's why the gym is crowded every Tuesday morning with boys hard at work on their stunts. These fellows of both junior and senior high give excellent evidence of the training and supervision given them by Mr. McCandless.

Developing all those different tumbles to one's best abilities means plenty of muscle work as well as fun every Tuesday morning.

for a Long Anticipated Trip to the Farm Show.

Also on the bus to the Farm Show this year were the members of F. F. A., a comparatively young club catering to agricultural interests. Quite active, they entered their prize possessions in the show and the York Fair, winning several ribbons. They were also seen on television and heard on the radio in two shows during the year. Some day these fellows will be raising the food we buy in the stores!

January . . . and the end of the semester. Naturally, since the main idea of school is to learn, the students' reports reveal just how much was absorbed during this first half of the term. The moaning, or otherwise, heard at that time is a give-away for loafers or workers. Every marking period a banner is awarded to the junior and senior high home room with the highest scholastic average. This jogs the ambition somewhat and promotes a bit of friendly rivalry between rooms, thus leading to better grades on the whole.

Dances are Held in Honor of Saint Valentine.

The gaily decorated red and white color scheme of the Heart Hop helps put these young couples in the Valentine Day mood.

Little Dan Cupid was on the war path with his arrows this February as he pierced four hearts for the annual valentine dances. A prince and princess were crowned at the junior high affair and their majesties, the king and queen of hearts, were honored by the upper set. Both evenings programs were presented by the students with singing the main entertainment for senior high. A variety show of musicians and dancers provided an enjoyable program in keeping with the sweetheart season.

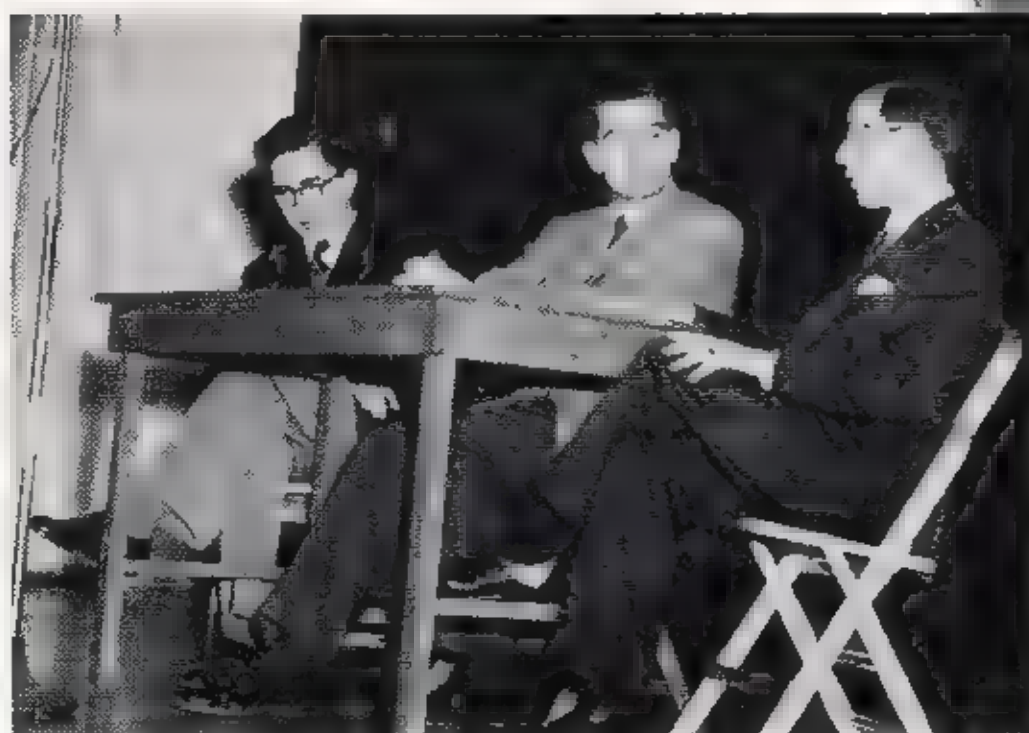

Terry Kohler and Camille Taylor are crowned Prince and Princess of Hearts by Dawn Shoff, last year's princess, and Tommy Tollinger, substituting for Dennis Warner

Joan Holtzapple, Queen of Hearts, and Mrs. Jackowick are getting a big laugh as Darwin Shelley places the crown on Terry Frey, King of Hearts.

Always an Interesting Assembly Program . . .

To break the monotony of routine, assemblies are presented throughout the year, some featuring student talent, others from outside. For the sophomores, important happenings of 1953 served as a theme, for the Dramatic Club, February events were the inspiration. Professional programs ran from animal acts to health habits . . . and on the side of world affairs, the Rotary's forum and a lecture on India.

Rotary exchange students, Coulter McDowell from North Ireland and Andre de Pfyffer from Switzerland, with coordinator, the Rev. William Young, in the middle, tell about the life in their native countries.

A few weeks after semester grades are out, a special request by phone calls certain students with high scholarship or sports records to the office. Classmates guess, and are usually right, that these are the new members of the honor societies. This year the N.H.S. added fourteen seniors and seven juniors, and the N.A.S.S., two juniors and one senior —the very active leaders in school activities, who have met the standards of character and citizenship.

Hard at Work Rehearsing for their Annual Play.

One of the things during the school year which the juniors look forward to is their class play. This year the production is scheduled for March 12 and 13, and rehearsals have been underway for some time. The play—"Out of the Frying Pan"—is a three-act comedy involving six unemployed actors and actresses living in a cheap boarding house. They attempt to demonstrate their abilities to a casting producer living downstairs by staging a murder scene. The police invade the flat, thinking the plot is real, and bring all matters to a hilarious climax.

Miss Marie Keeports, B.A., M.A., reads over the selected junior play, giving careful thought to all big production possibilities. She also takes care of the N.H.S. and teaches eleventh grade English.

Wayne Zarfus emerges from the trunk, while his actor friends—Molly Matthews, Rodney Tyson, Robert Burg, Pat Foster, and Dorothy Brandt—look on.

1954 Lion Goes to Printer, Leaving Behind Tired

After many gruelling hours of writing, typing, proofing, more proofing, mounting and taking pictures, the Lion is finally going to press. A little late for the first deadline, but with Miss Clevenger piloting the crew, dust flew and the book finally took shape. Since last April the activity office has been buzzing with activity—the clicking of typewriters, the grinding of the make-up staff's paper cutter and the endless search for a clever word or phrase. Now, fingers are crossed that the finished product will arrive before commencement.

That never-ending task of proofing copy . . . Miss Helen Clevenger, B.A., M.A., divides her precious time between teaching Latin and English and serving as advisor for the "Lion."

Class colors _____ red and white
Class flower _____ red and white carnations
Class motto _____ It is better to try and fail than not to try at all.

Soon the long-awaited commencement time will arrive. But, strangely enough, some of the seniors aren't nearly as anxious to leave R.L.H.S. as they were two or three years ago. Preparations for class day, baccalaureate and the prom all awaken memories of the past four years that seemed long dead.

Although a new phase of life is in the near future for them, everyone in the class of '54—those who go on to colleges and other schools, or those who enter jobs in factories and offices—will relive these best days of their lives in their hearts forever.

PATRONS

Friends are wonderful things to have and no one realizes it more than the Lion staff. With more than five hundred patrons expressing confidence by their financial help, many things that were at the question mark stage because of budget limitations became a reality. Thanks to them all for helping make a better Lion.

Our Patrons - Names We are Proud to List . . .

LEFT: A surprise birthday party for Dixie Dehoff and Joe Stauffer . . . cake and all . . . things just aren't the same in P.O.D. anymore. RIGHT: A sample of the new school jackets arrives and gets a good going over by the Student Council . . . it's up to them to decide what changes, if any, are to be made.

FINIS

And so the curtain falls on another year at R.L.H.S.—a typical year filled with exciting memories and one which we seniors shall never forget. When our superiors kept reminding us to enjoy high school, we laughed and somehow disagreed. But with the '54 Lion as a record, we retrack our former opinions and give as good sound advice to underclassmen—Enjoy your high school days. They are the best days of your lives.
